Renting a vehicle? City councilor wants your info sent to cops

Measure proposed to make renter's names available to police ◗ Rental cars used in various crimes, cops say ◗ Can cause delay in solving cases

COURTNEY SACCO/METRO

▶ Police find the rental car that was used in the Mattapan Shootings last year.

Citing a regular use of rental cars to commit crimes throughout the Hub, the City Council is examining a measure that would make the names of those renting a vehicle available to police.

"We have a whole slew of cars out there [and] Boston Police have no idea who is behind the wheel," said City Councilor Rob Consalvo who proposed the ordinance. "The bad guys ... are aware their names can't be traced quickly."

Consalvo recently proposed the measure that will be the subject of a hearing of the council's Public Safety Committee later this month.

Criminals have used rental cars to commit crimes such as drug dealing, prostitution and shootings in order to help create a delay before police possibly catch up to them, Consalvo and police said.

The measure would fix that, officials said, because it would allow police to call up the name of the renter in a database and save valuable investigation time.

Currently, Consalvo said, police must reach out to rental companies for information if they suspect a rental car has been used in committing a crime. An old state law even requires that the information sought by police be done so during regular business hours and be provided in writing.

But with new advancements in technology and much of the information computerized, Consalvo said that he views the issue as a "no-brainer."

"Whatever loopholes we can close to make it safer, we're going to look at it," he said.

Last year, a rental car was the subject of a search for suspects related to the murder of four people, including a 2-year-old, in Mattapan.

Police have reported other incidents in the past during which traffic stops of rental cars have led to the recovery of illegal guns.

BPD spokeswoman Elaine Driscoll said police welcome any initiative that helps them solve crimes.

"We appreciate Councilor Consalvo's ongoing commitment to public safety," she said.

Police investigate two sex assaults

Cops urge residents to be vigilant when walking alone after Dorchester attack reports BPD gives tips for safety

Police are looking for a suspect who may be linked to two separate sexual assaults at gunpoint early Sunday morning in Dorchester.

According to reports, around 2 a.m. officers responded to the Savin Hill MBTA station and the intersection of Dorchester Avenue and Harbor View Street for the two alleged attacks.

Police said the first victim at the Savin Hill stop reported being approached by a suspect who allegedly threatened her with a gun before sexually assaulting her.

The second victim reported a similar attack near Dorchester Avenue a short time later.

According to police reports, the suspect in both cases fled the scene immediately after the attack.

Police are looking for a black male described by the assault victims as stocky and muscular, wearing a baseball cap with a "B" on the front, wearing a dark, hooded sweatshirt and dark jeans.

Boston Police said they will be increasing patrols to those areas with uniformed and plain clothes officers.

Anyone with information can contact police anonymously by calling their tip line at 1-800-494-TIPS or text the word TIP to CRIME (27463).

Safety tips

Police offered safety tips after two alleged sexual assaults occurred:

- Wear sneakers or shoes that allow for added mobility.
- Keep a whistle within reach. If you feel threatened, use the whistle to signal residents.
- Hold your car keys in your hand to use as a weapon against an attacker.
- If you think someone is following you, switch directions or cross the street.

X marks spot for transit rally

Pro-transit groups drum up support Federal cuts to transportation still an issue despite bill extension

If you see hoards of commuters wearing red tomorrow while riding the MBTA, it isn't a strange coincidence. It's part of a national statement to save public transportation funding.

Local pro-transit groups will take part in the "Don't X Out Public Transportation Rally" right here in the Hub holding a public information session at the Park Street T stop.

Combined efforts of Boston Carmen's Union Local 589, the T Riders Union, On the Move Coalition and Transportation for America will send a bright-red message to Congress and the state legislature that future funding cuts to Massachusetts transportation "are unacceptable," according to Transportation for America organizer John Walkey.

"There is still a battle, because there are still chances for funds to get cut," Walkey said, adding a cut of more than one third in federal funding could slash Massachusetts transit operations by as much as 30 percent when a six-month extension to the current bill expires.

"We need to drum up peoples' attention and let them understand these cuts could have an impact on their lives," he said.

The MBTA is already facing a $160 million deficit next fiscal year, according to officials.

Muammar Gaddafi is rumored to be plotting an escape to Niger. But even if he succeeds, he'll hardly be safe. Interpol has issued a Red Alert against the Libyan dictator. If captured, Gaddafi will be turned over to the International Criminal Court in The Hague, where he faces trial on charges of crimes against humanity.

of Sudan has been indicted, too — but he's still at large because there's no Interpol involvement."

Cross-examination by international prosecutors is a humiliating prospect for Gaddafi. But it may be his best option. Other leaders, including Italy's Benito Mussolini and Liberia's Samuel Doe, were simply killed upon capture.

"You never know what might happen while Gaddafi is being captured," notes Mariam Elhadri with Lawyers for Justice in Libya.

Dictators in the docks present a juicy spectacle: Consider former Serbian leader Radovan Karadzic, who has alternatively boycotted his trial and declared it illegal. But are international war crimes tribunals counterproductive? Once a war criminal is indicted, he no longer has incentive to improve.

"In the year 2011, it's implausible to argue that a leader responsible for genocide, crimes against humanity or war crimes can negotiate his or her own freedom from justice and live happily ever after. Today the rule of law actually means something when it comes to atrocity crimes," notes David Scheffer, former President Bill Clinton's ambassador for war crimes issues, who helped create the war crimes tribunals in the Balkans, Rwanda, Sierra Leone and Cambodia.

And, says Sacirbey, Gaddafi's actions show that war criminals don't change. "The international community thought it had reformed him," he notes. "But once you've committed war crimes, you don't stop."

Trial highlights

Bosnian war crimes suspects haven't made the trial process easy:

- Radovan Karadzic: "I don't want to boycott the proceedings, but I can't take part in something that has been bad from the start. I would be a criminal if I accepted these conditions."
- Prosecutor: "Mr. Karadzic can't be permitted to manipulate the proceedings through his decision to not attend hearings. If necessary, force can be used to secure his presence in the courtroom."
- Radovan Karadzic: "I don't want to defend myself by saying that I was not important. I will defend my nation and its cause, which is just and holy. Islamic fundamentalists wanted to have Bosnia 100 percent."
- Ratko Mladic: "You're no court. Who are you? You're not allowing me to breathe!"

'HE'LL FIGHT UNTIL HE DIES'

We spoke with Mariam Elhadri, lawyer, Lawyers for Justice in Libya:

What does the ICC indictment mean for Gaddafi?
It will make it much harder for countries to give Gaddafi asylum. He's not out of reach for prosecutors. Since the ICC can't arrest people, Interpol's cooperation is extremely important. Other leaders might have negotiated in exchanged for immunity, but Gaddafi is not a negotiator. He said many times that he'll fight until he dies.

How is Lawyers for Justice in Libya assisting the ICC?
We're collecting crime evidence in every liberated city in Libya.

What are pros and cons of a Gaddafi trial at the ICC versus one in Libya?
If he's caught in Libya, the people of Libya would definitely want a trial there. Libyans view the ICC as an institution that's far away and doesn't understand the extent of Gaddafi's crimes. And it doesn't have the death penalty. On the other hand, organizing a trial against Gaddafi ... would be a huge task. MWN/EB

Clinton to hold jobs summit

NEW YORK. Former President Bill Clinton will push corporations and nonprofit groups at his philanthropic summit this week to create jobs as the U.S. unemployment hovers at 9.1 percent and poor nations worry that the economic crisis will stall their labor growth.

More than 1,200 people — including more than 50 heads of state (such as President Barack Obama), business leaders, humanitarians and celebrities — are due to attend the seventh annual Clinton Global Initiative, which starts a three-day run tomorrow.

This year, the meeting will focus on three areas — creating jobs, sustainable consumption and programs for women and girls. REUTERS

GOP criticizes Obama's idea to tax millionaires

Republican leaders yesterday went after President Barack Obama's proposal for a new tax on millionaires, calling it "class warfare" and predicting it will face heavy opposition in Congress.

Obama is expected to propose a "Buffett Tax" today on people making more than $1 million a year as part of his recommendations to a congressional super-committee seeking long-term deficit savings.

Paul Ryan, chairman of the House of Representatives Budget Committee, and Mitch McConnell, Senate Republican leader, said the proposal would limit growth and hurt corporate investment in an already stagnating economy.

"It adds further instability to our system [and] more uncertainty, and it punishes job creation and those people who create jobs," Ryan said on "Fox News Sunday." "Class warfare may make for good politics, but it makes for rotten economics."

McConnell said Congress had already debated the issue last year, when Obama and Republicans forged a compromise that extended the reduced tax rates for high-earners for two years.

"It's a bad thing to do in the middle of an economic downturn," McConnell said on NBC's "Meet the Press." "There is bipartisan opposition to what the president is recommending already." REUTERS

'Buffett Tax'

The "Buffett Tax" refers to billionaire investor Warren Buffett stating last month that rich people like him often pay less in taxes than those who work for them because of tax code loopholes — and his ilk can afford to pay more.

THE WORD

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

– Dorothy Robinson will return tomorrow.

Gunn calls Alley's bluff

PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

▶ Whatever her size, Alley looked pretty incredible on the runway at Fashion Week.

Kirstie Alley has looked nothing but great since appearing on "Dancing with the Stars." But is she really a size 4 after dropping 100 pounds, as she claims? Tim Gunn thinks not.

"There is a phenomenon out there right now that I call the lying, deceptive shell game of vanity sizing. In fact a 4 is really a 6 or an 8," Gunn said in an interview with a Tampa, Fla., radio station over the weekend.

Instead, Gunn — who served as the chief creative director for Liz Claiborne before you met him and his catchphrases on "Project Runway" — suspects that Alley is actually somewhere between a size 8 and a size 10. And that's in 2011 speak: He points out that a size 8 today is larger than ever (hence Marilyn Monroe's "size 14").

Naturally, we spent a really creepy Sunday afternoon stalking her on our photo service. The verdict? We don't know where she's buying these "size 4" dresses, but we very, very much want to find out — and hope they accept credit.

We know we regularly bum you guys out with tales of celebrity parenting disasters, rehab stints and petty feuds. It's the nature of the business, and for that we sincerely apologize. But today, we offer you this item about Rob Lowe: For the past six months, according to TMZ, he's been volunteering with OneDogRescue.org, a rescue organization for special-needs dogs — plenty of them in tiny little casts with big grateful eyes. Rob Lowe, this earns you a get-out-of-gossip-free pass. Please redeem before any interaction with Lindsay Lohan for best results.

JLo doesn't do Carvel

Jennifer Lopez was spotted spending time with almost-ex Marc Anthony over the weekend. It seems it was his birthday, and he confirmed to Us-Magazine.com that the two are "absolutely" still friends.

Talking points

Brad takes it back

Brad Pitt is doing damage control after he made some less-than-complimentary remarks to Parade about life with Jennifer Aniston. "It started feeling pathetic. It became very clear to me that I was intent on trying to find a movie about an interesting life, but I wasn't living an interesting life myself," Pitt told the magazine. "I think that my marriage [to Aniston] had something to do with it. Trying to pretend the marriage was something that it wasn't." But Pitt insists his comments were taken out of context. "It grieves me that this was interpreted this way," Pitt says in a statement. "Jen is an incredibly giving, loving and hilarious woman who remains my friend. It is an important relationship I value greatly. The point I was trying to make is not that Jen was dull, but that I was becoming dull to myself — and that, I am responsible for."

▶ Gosling with McAdams in 2007...

▶ ... and with Bullock in 2001.

Good luck, Eva?

Ryan Gosling's rumored girlfriend, Eva Mendes, has a lot to live up to. "I had two of the greatest girlfriends of all time. I haven't met anybody who could top them," Gosling says of exes Sandra Bullock and Rachel McAdams, according to Hollyscoop. Plus, any relationship now takes a backseat: "There's interest, but I'm in a committed relationship with film. I'm giving as much to it as a marriage."

It's a boy for January

January Jones has given birth to a healthy baby boy, according to People magazine. Her rep confirms that the "Mad Men" star and her new son, Xander Dolan, are "doing great." Jones had said during her pregnancy that the baby's sex would be a surprise. She similarly declined to reveal the identity of Xander's father.

Bring on the Beckhams

Maybe David and Victoria Beckham aren't done having kids after all, as the soccer star hinted to Ellen DeGeneres that they'd welcome the idea of another baby. "If we were lucky enough to have another one, it would be great," he said. "We always spoke about having a big family. We love children. We are very blessed to have four healthy children; so if one comes along, that would be amazing."

This weekend on the stage and red carpet

1: We don't say this often — probably because we rarely think it — but Ashlee Simpson looked great on the BAFTA red carpet in L.A. on Saturday night. As for her date, Vincent Piazza? Not as cute as her pixie cut, but we approve.

2: Justin Bieber, Selena Gomez and Usher were snapped backstage at the Georgia Music Hall of Fame Awards on Saturday.

3: There was some serious dirty hair in L.A. on Thursday night. Ke$ha and Alice Cooper were onstage together for reasons we're not entirely sure of, but are nonetheless grateful for.

4: Kind of hungry, kind of annoyed: Do Fashion Week front-row buddies Kate Moss and Kristen Stewart know no other expression?

5: Also spotted looking cute at BAFTA: "Modern Family" star Jesse Tyler Ferguson.

6: One more BAFTA photo, because we can kind of see Kathy Griffin getting annoyed that we didn't note how good she's been looking lately. Noted.

FALL TV GUIDE

Before the first cottontail and corset make appearances onscreen, "The Playboy Club" is stirring up controversy. Taking place at the Chicago home base of the infamous 1960s nightclub chain, the new NBC drama is being criticized for glorifying an institution that objectifies women.

"These girls are using so much more than [their bodies]," says actress Naturi Naughton, who likes to refer to her character, Brenda, as a "chocolate Bunny." "I mean, it's empowering because these girls are smart, they're going to school, they're buying homes ... things that women weren't able do at that time. [They're] using their resources and relying on themselves."

In truth, the iconic Bunny costumes are rather tame by today's standards, and are the most visually risque thing you'll see in the pilot. But in that first hour, brand new Bunny Maureen (Amber Heard), who captures the eye of every man in the club, finds herself in a dire situation that only "the ultimate playboy," attorney Nick Dalton (Eddie Cibrian), can rescue her from.

"Don't underestimate that character and her intelligence," Heard insists. "I think Maureen allows herself to be helped when she needs it. She by no means relies on any character, male or female, in this story — and never has."

What the series relies on is audiences buying into the escapism these clubs provided, 50 years after the fact. But nostalgia is a powerful drug.

"This is a world where you come to enjoy the music. You walk in. You feel like you're in this fantasy, and that's what it was," says Naughton. "It's like Disney World for adults, which is one of the phrases that was used. And at the end of the day, there is no Disney World without the characters and without the people [and] the roller coasters, and without all the fun things that you come for."

As long as audiences are willing to buy a ticket and take the ride.

Scene-stealer: Maya Rudolph, 'Up All Night'

Maya Rudolph is not a childless, self-absorbed talk show host. She just plays one on TV.

"Yeah, I've got three kids, so I'm a crazy person," deadpans the former "Saturday Night Live" star, who reunites with executive producer Lorne Michaels for the new sitcom, "Up All Night." "The funny irony, really, is that I'm the one without the kid in the show."

Rudolph plays Ava, the demanding boss to Christina Applegate's new mom, Reagan (Will Arnett stars as the baby daddy). Ava's cluelessness when it comes to the reality of raising a kid spikes on Reagan's first day back to work; the boss awkwardly pleas that they party in the name of work. But Rudolph doesn't have to think back too far to remember what it was like to be perhaps over-invested in her own job. "Anything outside of New York City when you had show week was really hard to fathom because everything for me was living, breathing 'SNL' at the time," she says of her former gig. "It's funny when you think back to the person that you thought you were going to be or you hold any sort of judgment over parents," Rudolph adds, reflecting on her character and younger self. "You really don't know [what it's like to be a parent] until you have that experience."

Ups and downs

Maria Bello stars as Det. Jane Timoney in "Prime Suspect."

'Prime Suspect'

Play along with NBC's insistence that this isn't a remake of the British series starring Helen Mirren, and their star, Maria Bello, could be one of the most absorbing homicide detectives on television. To succeed, though, this cop drama has to get over the "chick in a dude's world" line that dominates the pilot — quickly. (Premieres Thursday at 10 p.m. on NBC)

Whitney Cummings and Chris D'Elia star in "Whitney."

'Whitney'

"Whitney" has potential to be a smart commentary on modern relationships — until you meet the secondary characters. The central couple (Whitney Cummings and Chris D'Elia) has likable goofiness, sarcasm and heart. But the sloppily written caricatures that surround the duo — the bitter divorcee; the "perfect" couple — are so painfully unlikable, audiences are likely to break up with this sitcom after the first date. (Premieres Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on NBC)

Hook on joy, division and Joy Division

DAVID SUZAN

Peter Hook has come to terms with his musical past in a variety of ways in the last 16 months. To mark the 30th anniversary of the death of Joy Division singer and goth-rock icon Ian Curtis last May, Hook led a band through "Unknown Pleasures" in its entirety. While Hook had played bass on the original album, he tackled this commemorative endeavor as the singer. His son plays bass. The outing was successful enough that he took the show on the road.

This year, he reincarnates Joy Division's more sophisticated follow-up, "Closer." But not all of Hook's recent reckoning with his past has been happy. Earlier this month, his bandmates in New Order (the group that soldiered on after Curtis' suicide) announced a reunion — without him. Though he doesn't sound happy about the new New Order, his tone is more straightforward than angry.

"Our relationship has been terrible ever since we stopped working together," he says of singer Bernard Sumner. "So I'm not in a hurry to work with that bastard and I'm sure he's not in a f—ing hurry to work with me. But they didn't tell me that they had made this decision."

One person he is happy to work with is his son, Jack, the official bassist for Peter Hook and the Light. Does he scold him for mistakes?

"Yes, and he always tells me to f— off," Hook laughs. "It's nice because it can't be every man in the world that can say he knows exactly where his 21-year-old son is every moment of the day."

PAT HEALY
pat.healy@metro.us

"Shadowplay"

When Hook sings these sometimes morbid lyrics, does it become apparent to him that Curtis might have been issuing a cry for help?

"Even though he was singing these very obviously tortured lyrics, if you asked him if he was OK, he'd go, 'I'm absolutely fine! I'm on top of the world! Let's go!'" says Hook. "The biggest problem with Ian was that he wanted you to be happy."

A magical, 'Modern' night in television

63rd Primetime Emmy Awards pays homage to the wonders of the medium ◗ 'Modern Family' wins big

Television is a vast wonderland — and an especially golden one if you work on "Modern Family."

The 63rd Primetime Emmy Awards, honoring the best of the small screen, ran with the idea that television is a magical medium. The show kicked off last night with host Jane Lynch extolling — through song and dance — the wondrous virtues of TV. Wave your magical remote, she sang, and patients are cured in an hour by doctors that work once a week! Men actually enjoy cooking! Awards shows can move swiftly and be mildly entertaining!

Speaking of awards: It was a trophy-filled evening for ABC's "Modern Family." The sitcom took the first four awards of the night, including two biggies: Julie Bowen and Ty Burrell won for supporting actress/actor. "Modern Family" wins for best comedy directing and writing followed. The series also won best comedy.

There wasn't such a clear-cut drama favorite. In five major categories, five series won: "Mad Men" took best drama, while acting statues went to "Friday Night Lights"'s Kyle Chandler (lead actor), "The Good Wife"'s Julianna Margulies (lead actress), "Game of Thrones"'s Peter Dinklage (supporting actor) and "Justified"'s Margo Martindale (supporting actress).

- A four-year degree doesn't guarantee you a job
- Take it from a former professor who taught plenty of wide-eyed undergrads — before trying to land a job outside the system herself

GETTY IMAGES

▶ That's a lot of hats. Graduates need to have professional skills and strategies in addition to a degree in the classics, according to university expat Amanda Krauss.

When college can't cut it

As a former professor, Amanda Krauss knows what a college degree can do for you. But just as importantly, she knows what it can't. "Being a professor, I saw how many people came to college not knowing why they were there, with this expectation that they would somehow be given a job," she says. "Because that's the idea, right? But there isn't this correlation anymore, this neat equation of education equals job."

Krauss found this out the hard way when she left her position as a classics professor at Vanderbilt to pursue a career in technology.

She blogs about her experiences in higher ed and the outside world at WorstProfessorEver.com. We caught up with her for some tips on landing a job, with or without a diploma.

Know how to discuss coursework

There's nothing wrong with taking a varied, liberal arts-heavy courseload — but be prepared to explain how these classes translate into job skills. "There's a lot of resistance at the higher level by people who don't want to turn college into vocational school," says Krauss. "If you want to study poetry, that's fine; but make sure you know how to present that to an employer."

Join professional organizations

No matter your education level, it's important to stay current in your prospective field of employment. "Conferences and professional organizations are one of the universals of professional development," says Krauss. "It's where you learn about the most current trends in your field." And then, of course, list these babies on your current, relevant résumé.

Make a portfolio

▶ Whether you have a degree, took some classes or are self-taught, you must have something concrete that shows off your skills. "Show, not tell — that's what a portfolio is," says Krauss. "Don't say 'I took a class.'"

Think twice about a master's

An undergrad degree in linguistics that you don't know how to use? That's a forgivable move, and your university shares some of the murky guilt. But the old "wrong me once" adage applies to poorly thought-out master's degrees.

After leaving Vanderbilt, Krauss discovered that advanced degrees weren't always an asset when job-hunting in new fields. "An advanced degree scares people if you're not in higher ed. A lot of the time, employers think: 'Why would you want to do this?'"

3 Tips for global growth

GETTY IMAGES

▶ There's pressure to expand globally in our ever-smaller world, but a solid plan is still a must.

Amidst an increasingly connected world, globalization is the order of the day. The concept poses both great benefits and significant challenges to entrepreneurs. However, while the benefits are many (including more efficient communication and greater potential for collaboration), today's digital age can put increased pressure on young businesses to expand globally — and to do so quickly. With that in mind, here are three tips for entrepreneurs looking to expand globally.

1 Clearly define your business model: While this may sound like a trivial task, young start-ups often have an exciting and innovative product, but no real plan for monetizing it. You need to have an actionable, scalable business model with measurable metrics in place before you expand. It's critical to establish this component of your business before thinking seriously about growth.

2 Build your community: It's also important to identify and engage with your community from the beginning. In today's connected world, your community can be one of the most effective methods of spreading awareness, whether it be your company's value proposition or evangelizing your product and/or services. Building and engaging a community through online forums and e-mail lists is often a common first step. Social media channels are increasingly the norm — so further investing in community activities like meet-ups and workshops can add a face-to-face element.

3 Relocate to your new market: If you're the CEO of a young start-up looking to establish a footprint in a new market, you should consider relocating to help grow the new office. Managing employees and tasks remotely can be a recipe for disaster. It's best that you personally oversee operations to ensure that they're in line with your broader business vision. Since these early individuals will be critical, being present and managing them first-hand will effectively establish a precedent.

Identity theft is heading back to school

GETTY IMAGES

▶ If someone has your credit card or bank account info, you're in for a hassle. But your social security number is where the real identity theft fun begins.

September is an exciting time of the year for college students. But for every new club, new apartment and new study abroad opportunity, there are forms to fill out — forms that include quite a bit of personal information. Combined with a little youthful optimism, it makes fall the prime season for student identity theft.

"College students have a giant bullseye on their back for a lot of reasons," says Mike Prusinski of identity theft prevention service LifeLock. "Organizations see them as a huge marketing opportunity, so they're getting offers for everything. And they're in situations where personal information and mail aren't private. There's a tremendous increase in risk, and all it takes is an individual who needs money."

And as far as real-world wake-up calls, identity theft can be a particularly ugly and expensive one, with more red tape than your university's financial aid office.

"College students have this attitude that, 'Nothing can happen to me; and even if it does, my mom and dad will fix it,'" says Prusinski. "Well, they can't — credit bureaus won't talk to your mom. And if you're a new college student, you now have a lot to do between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m."

What you can do

Here are Prusinski's basics:

- Think beyond your bank account number: "While most people are worried about someone getting ahold of their credit card or debit card, the real problem is when someone has your social security number and date of birth."
- Ask questions: "One thing college kids never ask is: 'Why do you need it?' But it's no different than when you go to see your doctor. You have every right to ask, 'Why do you need it, how are you storing it?'"

Rick Perry is Big Oil's man

The main portion of Rick Perry's political contributions come from oil and gas companies. Do we really need another Texas oil and gas representative in the White House so soon? Maybe there's some unfinished business — like Iran? GLENN HAYES, VIA E-MAIL

Jesus a coward? Read the Bible

RE: "PACIFISTS ARE JUST COWARDS": If, as J.D. Tordoff claims, "pacifists are natural cowards," that would mean that Gandhi, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and, oh yes, Jesus Christ himself ("whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also") were all "natural cowards." RICHARD FEINBERG, WEST ROXBURY

Everyone's a big hypocrite

The Elisabeth Hasselbeck and Michael Moore feud points up a weird dichotomy in American "spiritual/political life." Elisabeth was cool with killing bin Laden, unarmed, without arrest, trial or reinstating a justice system in America; and Michael Moore is cool with killing babies in their mothers' wombs. Looks like the train has left the tracks. CHARLES MICHAEL COUCH, VIA E-MAIL

Must be sure of death sentence

RE: "ERRING ON THE SIDE OF TRAGEDY": It's happening again. Hard to believe that the state of Georgia is about to execute Troy Davis when witnesses have recanted, another person confessed to the crime and new testimony makes Davis' link to the already circumstantial evidence highly unlikely. The new evidence never got heard at trial because of legal technicalities. Cameron Todd Willingham was executed for a crime which it now appears that he didn't commit. The Georgia Board of Pardons should commute this sentence. The facts are obviously not all in. JUDY MILLER, VIA E-MAIL

The court system is known to make mistakes. If there is any doubt in your mind, please grant Troy Davis a new trial. KATRINA PATTERSON, VIA E-MAIL

At the very least, Davis should be granted a new trial and allow any new information to be introduced. To execute this man is very unjust to him, those who care about him and the honor of the officer who was killed. DAWN GILLESPIE, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Be on your toes, because something unexpected might occur that would permit you to tie two loose ends together, allowing you to pull off an otherwise impossible feat.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. A situation similar to one you recently handled successfully could repeat itself. With experience under your belt, you won't hesitate to take it on.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. If you're in need of some assistance, turn first to those you recently helped. They're likely to be the ones who make some time to assist you.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. There are indications that you might get the opportunity to merge two new projects into one major endeavor. Although they'll be unrelated, they'll complement each other well.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Instead of avoiding all challenges, you should boldly step forward and meet them head-on. Provocation serves to awaken your strongest qualities and your resolve to win.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Having multiple activities awaiting you will prove energizing, so block out your time. Having a lack of things to do could be tiring.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Take matters into your own hands if those who were delegated to do certain jobs for you aren't performing up to snuff. It will be much easier simply to do things yourself.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Although you're exceptionally perceptive, with your judgment being quite keen, you might not follow through on your shrewd instincts.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Instead of just blowing the hours away on petty issues or activities, give priority to situations that could be meaningful in material ways. Focus on things that will yield immediate returns.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. An important endeavor in which you're involved is in dire need of some effective leadership. If you believe you can fill these shoes, try them on for size and take charge.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Because your interest is quite high in multiple areas of your life, you may have difficulty choosing which facets to focus on. Pick the most challenging.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is an air of excitement and adventure about you that bored associates will greatly welcome. You won't be putting on any airs; what you project will be quite genuine.

PATS 'TURN' IN WIN

Extend lead late in 35-21 victory over Chargers ◗ Brady throws for 400 yards and three touchdowns ◗ Bolts commit four turnovers, including costly fumble by Tolbert in the fourth

What went right ...

1 Goal-line stand
The Chargers had first-and-goal from the Patriots' 5-yard line, looking to take a 14-10 lead in the second quarter. The Patriots had other thoughts. They stopped the Chargers on four straight plays.

2 'Big' interception
The Chargers were marching in the second quarter when 325-pound Vince Wilfork picked off Philip Rivers. It's safe to say Wilfork's first career interception was worth the weight. Sorry.

ELSA/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Chad Ochocinco got a nice hand from the crowd after his first catch.

What went wrong ...

1 Key injuries
It's too soon to tell how seriously injured players are, but safety Patrick Chung (hand), tight end Aaron Hernandez (knee), cornerback Kyle Arrington (head) and punter Zoltan Mesko (knee) were all banged up.

2 Shaky pass defense
It wasn't really a surprise, but both teams lit up the scoreboard, accounting for 56 points combined. Brady threw for over 400 yards, while Rivers threw for 378. That's the new NFL. JIMMY TOSCANO

▶ Dustin Pedroia and the Sox lost three of four this weekend.

Sox lose three of four to Rays

Even the veteran knuckleballer couldn't "Wake" the Red Sox up.

The Rays knocked Tim Wakefield around yesterday, beating Boston 8-5 and trimming their deficit in the AL Wild Card race to just two games.

Tampa Bay took three of four from the free-falling Sox over the weekend, moving within spitting distance of taking the fourth playoff spot — an outcome that seemed unthinkable mere weeks ago.

Wakefield, fresh off his 200th career win, couldn't repeat the feat at Fenway Park yesterday. He lasted just four innings, surrendering six runs (four earned). The surging Rays took a 3-0 lead in the second, and never really came close to giving it up.

About the only Sox highlight was a three-run rally in the seventh.

Boston entered September a shoo-in for the postseason. But they've lost 13 of 17 this month, putting them on the verge of one of the biggest collapses in baseball history.
